More information

- if your driving record shows
  - one or more driving-related Criminal Code convictions, and/or
  - one or more 10-point Motor Vehicle Act convictions, and/or
  - one or more excessive speeding tickets and/or
  - two or more roadside suspensions
you may have to pay a DRP based on Table 2.

You will be billed for each category that applies to you. For example, if during the assessment period you have two roadside suspensions, one excessive speeding conviction and one Criminal Code conviction, you would pay $1,595:
- $370 for the roadside suspensions
- $320 for excessive speed
- $905 for the Criminal Code conviction.

You will only receive one DRP invoice per year, but each driving offence may impact DRP billings for more than one year, depending on the rest of your driving record in a three-year period.

What happens if I don’t pay the premium?

If you don’t pay your DRP/DPP premium,
- you will not be able to complete any driver’s licence or vehicle insurance transactions until you pay any debts you owe to ICBC or the government.
- the insurance coverage provided with your driver’s licence will not be valid.
- we apply interest to the amount that hasn’t been paid.

Can I do anything to reduce or eliminate my premium?

You can eliminate the DRP/DPP premium if you voluntarily surrender your driver’s licence to a driver licensing office for the entire billing period (starting the day after your assessment date and ending on your next assessment date — generally your date of birth).*

Your premium may be reduced if you have been prohibited from driving for 60 days or more within the billing period, or you have surrendered your licence for 30 days or more. If you have voluntarily surrendered your driver’s licence, you can have it reissued at any time if you visit a driver licensing office and pay the reduced DRP/DPP premium and a reinstatement and/or renewal fee, as long as you:
- do not have any driving prohibitions
- do not have other debt to ICBC or the government, and
- don’t need to be re-examined.

Be sure to call ICBC Customer Contact to find out what the premium and reinstatement fee will be before you visit the driver licensing office.

You may also apply to ICBC Customer Contact for a refund or reduction in your billing if, for a minimum of 30 days in a row during the billing period:
- you were living in another province and lawfully held a driver’s licence there.
- you were not in Canada or the United States.
- you were incarcerated.
- you could not operate a vehicle for medical reasons.

You will need to provide us with valid documentation to support these circumstances.

Where can I pay?

There are three convenient ways to pay:
1. Mail your remittance slip with a cheque or money order payable to the Insurance Corporation of British Columbia to:
   - ICBC Revenue Accounting
   - 151 West Esplanade
   - North Vancouver BC V7M 3H9
   You can also mail the remittance slip with your Visa, MasterCard or American Express information, including your signature, to the address above.

2. Payment can be made at full service ATMs where you do your regular banking — make sure you enclose your remittance slip with your payment.
   You can also take the enclosed remittance slip with your payment to most Canadian banks, trust companies or credit unions.

3. Take the remittance slip and payment to one of the following offices anywhere in B.C.:
   - Autoplan broker
   - Driver Licensing Centre
   - Appointed Agent
   - Service BC Centre
   - ICBC Claim Centre.

Good to know: Criminal Code fines must be paid at a court location.

How can I pay?

If you are paying by mail, please pay by credit card, cheque or money order. Please do not mail cash. If you are paying in person, cash, certified cheques or money orders will be accepted. Autoplan brokers, Driver Licensing Centres and Appointed Agents also accept Visa, MasterCard, American Express and debit cards.

Who do I contact if I have questions?

* When the DRP program is in effect, you may need to surrender your licence once per year for three successive years in order to eliminate premiums.
Drivers with more driving offences or convictions get involved in more crashes than other drivers — twice as many, in fact. Customers tell us that those drivers should pay more for the higher risks and related claims costs they represent on our roads. That’s why we are replacing the Driver Penalty Point (DPP) premium with the Driver Risk Premium (DRP). DRP will be introduced in two phases.

Under DPP, you pay if you:
- are guilty of certain driving offences under the Motor Vehicle Act or its Regulations, or
- have certain Criminal Code of Canada convictions, like driving while impaired.

The DPP premium is based on your driving offences over a one-year period, and is separate from any fine or other penalty for the offence(s).

Beginning in January 2009, DRP Phase 1 took effect and you will pay a DRP if you have:
- one or more driving-related Criminal Code convictions, and/or
- one or more 10-point Motor Vehicle Act convictions, and/or
- one or more excessive speeding convictions and/or
- two or more roadside suspensions.

In addition to what’s already in Phase 1, DRP Phase 2 will impact you if you get multiple driving-related convictions over a period of time. DRP Phase 2 will come into effect at a later date that is to be determined.

The DRP and DPP premiums are separate from AutoPlan insurance premiums. They are billed even if you don’t own or insure a vehicle. Any revenue generated will offset insurance premiums for safe drivers — those who don’t have crashes and driving offences or convictions.

If I have driving convictions that apply to the Driver Penalty Point program and the Driver Risk Premium program, will I get two bills?

No. The Driver Risk Premium and the Driver Penalty Point programs will operate in parallel until the DRP premium is fully phased in and DPP premium is discontinued. During the transition, you will only be billed under one program each year, whichever results in the higher premium.

We will send you the DRP/DPP premium invoice approximately one month before your assessment date, which is generally your date of birth.

When and how are DPP premiums calculated?
The DPP is billed every year. If four or more points have been added to your record since your last DPP assessment, you will be billed according to Table 1.

You will receive a bill approximately one month before your assessment date. The DPP bill applies to driving offences that occur on or after January 1, 2008. Previous convictions that you received during the 12-month period ending five months before the assessment date (the date the points are added to your record) will be later than the date of the violation, because of the time required for recording and processing.

Here are some examples of how the number of points for driving offences can result in a DPP premium:
- 3 points for one speeding offence added during your scan period = no DPP premium assessed.
- 3 points for one speeding offence plus 2 points for failing to yield, added during assessment period = 5 points = $240 DPP premium assessed.

Points are only used once to calculate your DPP premiums. For example: if your birthday is June 15, your DPP premium will be calculated in May, based on points accumulated in the 12 months before and including January 15 of that year.

When and how will the DRP be calculated?
DRP Phase 1 took effect January 2009 and is billed annually. Each year just prior to your assessment date we will review your driving record for offences in the previous three years. The DRP program will only count those offences that occur on or after January 1, 2008.

Here’s an example of how it will work beginning January 2009 if your birthday is in January:

- your conviction history from August 1, 2007 to August 1, 2008 will be reviewed to calculate any DPP premium.
- your driving history from August 1, 2007 to August 1, 2008 will be reviewed for DRP Phase 1-related offences (if you have any that happened before January 1, 2008, they will be excluded, even if a conviction is registered in 2008).
